

National Teleconference: Naturopathic Medicine & Cancer

Tuesday, May 19, 1-2 pm (NY time)

Open to people nationwide who have or have had breast or ovarian cancer.
Pre-registration is required.

To register, call Support Connection, 914-962-6402 or 800-532-4290.

This program will introduce you to Naturopathic Medicine and how a Naturopathic Doctor can be a helpful part of your cancer care team.

Dr. Egginton will discuss how she works with patients, as well as the following topics:

- Some common naturopathic recommendations during and after cancer treatment
- Functional medicine testing
- Hormone balancing
- Bone health
- The latest information from the Society for Integrative Oncology Conference regarding nutrition, intermittent fasting and exercise recommendations.

SPEAKER

Dr. Abby Egginton

Dr. Egginton is a licensed Naturopathic Doctor practicing in Ridgefield, CT and Pleasantville, NY. She earned her doctorate in Naturopathic Medicine from Bastyr University and then completed a residency in Naturopathic Oncology, at Indiana University Cancer Center followed by a fellowship at Bastyr. She has also completed advanced training in women's health, homeopathy, and craniosacral therapy and has been trained as a birth doula. Naturopathic medicine works to understand the underlying cause of symptoms and disease. Dr. Egginton partners with her patients to find personalized health solutions for lasting wellness. Learn more at www.balancenaturopathic.com.